01 What early access means

QuantifyQS is live and in controlled rollout: we onboard UK practices hands-on, and the product is evolving quickly. These terms exist so that is honest on both sides.

02 The honest position

- The service is provided as-is during early access: features may change, and occasional issues are expected
- There is no service-level agreement yet: we publish live status instead of promising percentages we have not yet earned
- Do not make QuantifyQS your only copy of critical records during early access: export regularly (we make that easy)
- We may add, change or remove pre-release features with notice in the product

03 Feedback

Feedback you choose to give us about the product may be used to improve it, without obligation or charge, and without any transfer of your project data or IP.

04 When early access ends

At general availability these terms sunset and are replaced by the QuantifyQS Terms of Service alone, with a published SLA. Existing customers will be told before anything changes.
